

"Students as Colleagues" Colloquium

Although the contemporary community engagement movement was launched by student leaders during the 1980s, student leadership in academic service-learning has not received much attention. This colloquium will build on the models and practices presented in the Compact's new publication STUDENTS AS COLLEAGUES: EXPANDING THE CIRCLE OF SERVICE-LEARNING LEADERSHIP. It will help participants take stock of the many opportunities that exist to find, train, and utilize students in key service-learning positions.

Featured Speaker: Dr. Ed Zlotkowski

Dr. Ed Zlotkowski is a professor of English at Bentley College and the Senior Faculty Fellow at National Campus Compact. From 1995-2004, he served as general editor of the American Association for Higher Education's 20-volume series exploring the relationship between service-learning and academic disciplines/disciplinary areas. He has also designed and facilitated professional development opportunities in service-learning for provosts and deans as well as a series of summer institutes for engaged academic departments. He has written and spoken extensively on a range of service-learning topics, and regularly uses service-learning in his own teaching. In 2002, he edited Service-Learning and the First-Year Experience: Preparing Students for Personal Success and Civic Responsibility, and in 2004 served as lead author of The Community's College: Indicators of Engagement at Two-Year Institutions.
